

SAMUEL "SAM" H.

Eccentric, Fun, Quick

"Just 'cause you're accurate does not mean you're interesting."

-John Mulaney

BIOGRAPHY

In addition to participating in the 49ers STEM Leadership Institute since 7th grade, Sam also has participated in journalism at his school and has produced stories for NPR's KQED's Youth Takeover for the last two years. His passion for mathematics and his desire to challenge himself with more public speaking has lead him to consider future careers in math education or mechanical engineering. He is the founder and president of the Santa Clara High School Board Game Club, where he and his fellow club members play board games once a week during lunch. He's found that entertainment and socializing is an excellent way to relieve stress during the school week. In his free time, you'll likely find Sam playing taiko drums at the San Jose Taiko studio, eating ramen, or watching stand-up comedy.
